A PISCHE ROMANCE.

Husband and Wife Happily Reunited After 20 Years Estrangement.

PISCHE Record: C. F. Johnson, of Spring Valley, and wife have reunited after an estrangement of more than 20 years. It was in the sixties, when the rebellion was raging back in Missouri, Johnson joined the army that his wife's relatives were opposed to, which caused an ill feeling between himself and his wife's relations. After the rebellion had terminated Johnson left the States for the plains, drifting over in the mountains, wandering hither and thither, and meeting the innumerable vicissitudes of life that the people of this country generally meet, and for the past eleven years has been dealing in cattle in this country. He believed that his wife was dead, and she was of the opinion that her husband had been killed during the war, as she was unable to learn anything in regard to his whereabouts. About four years ago a man from this country happened to be traveling in Missouri, and while in the neighborhood of Johnson's old home, he remarked to the lady he was engaged in conversing with, that he knew a man by the name of Johnson, from that country, out in Nevada, and after he had given a description of the man, the lady became excited, and said it must be her husband. This was the first she had heard of her husband since he had joined the army. Since that time Johnson and his wife have been corresponding, and a couple of weeks ago she arrived out at Johnson's ranch, having been brought out from Missouri by George Warren, who was returning from a trip to Chicago. The husband and wife, though somewhat advanced in age, now feel as happy as two young lovers, who have not met each other for 24 hours.

A DEFENSE OF CLEVELAND.

The Sacramento Record-Union is doing some good work for the Republican ticket. As the recognized organ of the railroad monopolies, it devotes nearly a two column editorial to a vindication of Cleveland's veto of the five cent fare bill. Its argument is the same old cry of the monopolists, that has been heard from all over the country from their defenders—"Vested rights! Vested rights!" It won't do to interfere with "vested rights." After quoting the various acts under which the elevated railways were constructed, it assumes very naturally, that the roads have not earned the profits guaranteed them under the law, and hence the Governor was right in vetoing a bill, which would reduce their earnings below such a sum—a proposition that is also assumed, as its assumptions are always on the side of the monopolists. Now the fact is that the Constitution and laws of New York provide that the legislature may alter or amend a charter, or may impose new conditions such as the reduction of fares and freights, and that the terms of the legislative act which brought them into being cannot be invoked to place them above the control of the people through their Legislature. This fact was known to the Fields, Tilden, Sage, and all the other railroad wreckers when they obtained their franchises, and they went into the scheme with their eyes open. Their business is reported to be exceedingly profitable, but they made up a poor month to Cleveland, just as our Pacific Coast railroad magnates do to the Commissioners, and he was only too willing to listen to their requests and turn a deaf ear to the appeals of the people. The Record-Union is at least entitled to credit for consistency. Reflecting the views of its proprietors, it has always strenuously insisted that railroads are private property, subject only to the control of their owners, and any attempt at legislative interference in their management is not only pernicious but illegal. To have opposed Cleveland's veto, would have been to condemn the theory of those whose organ it is. The law of California, granting the Central Pacific a charter, fixed a maximum rate that might be charged for freights and fares, and it was for a long time contended by the representatives of the company, that any attempt to reduce such rates, would be an interference with vested rights, and an impairment of "the obligations of a contract." That doctrine has long since been exploded, but the principles involved in the elevated railroad case is the same, and was substantially reasserted by Governor Cleveland in his veto. Cleveland's friends on this coast will beg that he be spared any further defense of this character.

COTTON IN CALIFORNIA.
An important experiment is now under trial at the ranch of Messrs. Haggin & Carr, in Kern county, Cal. Indeed it may be called a double experiment. Several years since it was conclusively demonstrated that cotton could be successfully grown on the bottom lands, and reclaimed desert lands of that section, but the industry proved unprofitable from the difficulty not only in obtaining cheap labor, but also labor accustomed to cotton cultivation. Early this year this enterprising firm above named determined to import a large number of cotton field hands from the Southern States; colored people who had served their lives in planting, cultivating and picking cotton. The first experiment with the colored hands is said to have proved unsuccessful. The negroes became discontented and many of them broke their contracts and left. Nothing daunted by this result, more were brought out, and it is now reported that the enterprise has proven a success. The new laborers are said to be industrious, skillful, intelligent and contented, and with their families appear to be attached to their new homes, and the result of their labors is looked forward to with the utmost confidence that it will prove profitable and add another important industry to the many that are building up the Pacific Coast. Should these anticipations prove to be well founded, there are vast possibilities in store for the cotton industry in California. The great San Joaquin Valley, the Salinas Valley, which for years has produced good tobacco, and various other extensive localities are well adapted in soil and climate to the growth of cotton. Involved in the success of the enterprise are the questions of transportation charges, either to the eastern manufacturing centers or to San Francisco, and the feasibility of profitably manufacturing cotton fabrics near the source whence the raw material is supplied. The ultimate outcome of the experiment will be looked forward to with great interest.

The Alta asks "Can an Irishman vote for Blaine?" Just you wait and you'll think he can; and not only one, but millions of 'em. They don't propose to be played by you Chivs any longer, nor will they permit themselves to be used to break down our home industries, which give them employment, in the interest of Johnny Bull. Of course the Irishman as an aggregate can vote for Blaine, and from all parts of the country he emphatically declares that he will too.
The Third Republican Congressional District Convention of California, yesterday nominated Hon. Joseph McKenna of Solano county, for Congress. The nominee is an able man, of legislative experience, whose record is unsatisfactory. He made one campaign in the old Third District, before the reappointment, when it was almost hopelessly Democratic, and would have been elected but for party treachery in Humboldt county. The present district is overwhelmingly Republican, and his election is assured beyond the shadow of a doubt.
The Philadelphia Times having spoken pleasant words of Cleveland, its utterances are quoted as those of a Republican paper. The Times is not a Republican paper but an independent paper with Democratic leanings. It has supported the Democratic ticket in the two last elections in Pennsylvania, and takes to itself the credit of having elected the present Democratic Governor of that State.
A dispatch from Elizabeth, N. J. says that B. W. Tarring of that city, Secretary of the National Committee of the Greenback party, accompanied Gen. Butler from Chicago to Buffalo. He says Butler stated distinctly to Gen. Weaver and others that he had accepted the National Anti-Monopoly nomination and would make the campaign on that basis. He will probably concentrate his work in New York.
It is very natural that Henry Ward Beecher should support Cleveland. The reverend gentleman has publicly announced his belief that laboring men should not earn over a dollar a day.
General Rosecrans says of Cleveland: "He was not the choice of the people, and he represented the capitalists and not the laboring class."
King John, of Abyssinia, has sent Queen Victoria an elephant as a token of amity.
A GREAT DIFFERENCE.—Unbounded enthusiasm prevailed in this city when Jas. G. Blaine received the Republican nomination for President of the United States. The Bee's bulletin board was thronged all day with eager, excited men, who burst into cheers at every gain made by the plumed knight from Maine. When the fact was bulletined that the voice of the people had been ratified by the action of the Convention, a great shout went up, men shook each other by the hands and swung their hats in the air, and for the time forgot themselves in one wild hurrah of joy. It has been very different, indeed, to-day. A general apathy seems to have settled upon the Democratic citizens. They apparently take no interest whatever in the action of the Convention at Chicago. A dead calm has weighed down their spirits ever since the name of Blaine was flung to the breeze, and they are low and dispirited. Few comparatively gathered around the bulletin boards to hear the news, and those were listless and dispirited. When it was announced that Cleveland had been nominated, a funeral silence prevailed the ranks of the great unwashed, and the weak cheer which one individual attempted to raise died in its birth.—Sac. Bee.
A meeting of the National Committee of Irish-American Republicans and other prominent Irish citizens was held in the United States Hotel, at Long Branch, on Sunday, for the purpose of organizing for the coming campaign. A. L. Morrison, of New Mexico, presided. A large number of telegrams and letters from different parts of the country, making reports of Blaine and Logan movements, were read. It was resolved to hold a convention of Irish-American Republicans at Cincinnati, and a committee was appointed to prepare an address and plan of campaign.
A. J. Raney, of Napa county, Cal., claims to have discovered a shrub that may be put to good use as an antidote for poison oak. On it grows a kernel resembling coffee, and it is accordingly called the "coffee plant." By boiling the leaves of this plant and bathing the parts affected by the poison oak with the tea thus made, it is claimed that a cure is obtained which no other remedy guarantees.
The water has now so far fallen in the Carson river that in most places it is again within the banks. On some of the land down about Dayton from which the water has receded crops of hay or turnips may yet be grown.

BLAINE AND THE IRISH.
How Garfield's Secretary of State Twice Interfered to Take an Irishman Out of an English Jail.
E. P. Brooks, in the Peoria Evening Call, relates important facts in the record of Mr. Blaine while Secretary of State, showing how he defended O'Mahoney and other Irish from the English. Says Mr. Brooks:
Under Mr. Secretary Evarts I went abroad as consul at Cork, Ireland, the most turbulent and disaffected anti-British consular jurisdiction in that unfortunate country. In due course Mr. Blaine succeeded Mr. Evarts as Secretary of State, and during the entire period of his service in that department, and until after Mr. Frelinghuysen had in turn succeeded him, I remained in that official capacity. It was while Mr. Blaine was at the head of affairs in Washington that the Parnell movement reached its victorious culmination, and was followed by sporadic attempts at rebellion here and there all over the island. Those attempts opened and closed the doors of British prisons upon hundreds of brave and perhaps foolishly and misguided men, known in newspaper phrase as "suspects." Among them were a dozen or more naturalized American citizens, some of whom instantly appealed to the nearest consular officer for relief, release or protection. The first case of this kind was that of Michael Boyton, brother of the swimmer, at Dublin. The second was that of Henry O'Mahoney, of Ballydeob, County Cork. Boyton's case, of which I know very little, was attended to by Consul Burrows, at Dublin. O'Mahoney's wife wrote to me in his behalf, and I went there very soon thereafter, at my own expense, to the Limerick jail to investigate his claims. I found he had been an American citizen, had served in the Union army and had returned to Ireland, where he had been elected to and exercised the functions of the office of poor law guardian. It struck me that he had forfeited by the latter act all right to American protection. But I wrote to Consul General Badeau, then in London, and to Minister Lowell, making out as strong a case for O'Mahoney as possible. Some time passed, and I received no answer to my dispatch. Meanwhile I sent a full statement to the department asking for instructions in the premises, and complaining that Minister Lowell had neglected to take notice of my official communications to him. Long before I heard anything from Mr. Lowell and quickly as the ocean steamers could bring it I received a dispatch from the department, sent directly by Secretary Blaine, approving all I had done for O'Mahoney and ordering me to pursue the same course in other similar cases which had then arisen. What instructions, if any, the secretary sent to Minister Lowell I do not pretend to know. But from that moment there was a difference in the treatment my communications received at the legation in London. Mr. Lowell issued a circular letter liable to be construed as making a distinction between native and naturalized Americans, and giving general instructions to his subordinates regarding the questions at issue in those suspect cases. Right on the heels of this circular, and of Secretary Blaine's dispatch to me, O'Mahoney was released. The inference is too plain to require any elucidation. Protection to American citizens, of whatever nativity, in the land of their birth, was there for once averted, despite Minister Lowell's subservient explanations of the local supremacy of British laws in that region. But, alas! O'Mahoney refused to stay released. Instead of quietly attending to his personal affairs and abstaining from interfering in the politics of a "friendly power," he at once returned to the stump as the most violent agitator in the south of Ireland. He denounced the British Government and blackguarded Queen Victoria from the steps of public buildings in Cork and in consequence was rearrested, sent back to the Limerick jail and incarcerated as before. For the second time, as the result of Secretary Blaine's vigorous policy of protection, he was freed from his dungeon, although his actual release was not effected until after Mr. Frelinghuysen came into office.

CARL SCHURZ REPENTS.
His Paper Comes Out Strong for the Republican Ticket.
St. Louis, July 13.—The Westliche Post, Carl Schurz's paper, after bolting the nomination of Blaine and Logan, came out this morning with an announcement that it would support the Republican ticket. The cause of this action lies in the fact that the Westliche Post's subscribers fell away by thousands and the paper was nearly wrecked. It said: "The strongest man has been nominated by the Democrats, and we retract nothing of the good words we have said concerning him; but the more we try to familiarize ourselves with the idea of a Democrat at the head of our National Administration, the less we are able to reconcile ourselves to it. The longer this was considered the more vivid became the reminiscences of the past, and to-day we do not find that we are justified in making any guaranty that a Democrat, be his name Grover Cleveland even, would present an uncompromising front, under all circumstances, to the menaces of the Southern brigadiers, from the Vice Presidential candidate, who in the shape of the dyed-in-the-wool old Bourbon, or Hendricks, has been placed at Cleveland's side. One can anticipate still less a firm resistance to Southern aggression should any chance, which the forgotten past renders possible, require such a resistance. The Westliche Post opposed the old ticket four years ago simply on account of this man Hendricks. Now the name of Cleveland alone cannot accomplish and cannot make the Democratic declaration of principles appear any more agreeable to us. And now one word about the Republican ticket. We have criticised it thus far freely, but we admit now, with equal freedom, that we erred. We expected of the other party what the Republican party can best perform. Republicans can do no better than remain loyal to their ticket."

BOLTING CLEVELAND.
A Movement in New York to Defeat the Democratic Nominee.
New York, July 13.—A movement was made in this city yesterday toward the union of all labor and anti-monopoly elements in the city and State, provided General Butler shall be their standard-bearer. There was a private meeting to consider preliminary steps, at which John F. Henry, Chairman of the Anti-Monopolists organization, presided. At the conclusion of the meeting the following telegram was sent to General Butler:
Friends here advise you to issue a declaration of the present situation before leaving Chicago.
No response has been received. Mr. Henry said: "As soon as we ascertain definitely what Butler's intentions are, we intend to lose no time in making an attempt to unite the three great organizations of the city and State that have a large majority of votes—the Anti-Monopolists, Greenbackers and labor unions. If Tammany Hall with its splendid organization comes in, I for one shall be content to give it the leadership. It made a splendid fight and proved to the world that it is a staunch anti-monopoly organization. What a farce to put an anti-monopoly plank in the platform upon which Cleveland has been nominated. But the workmen will not be caught by any chaff of that kind this time. As far as I have received any reports, I don't know where Cleveland is going to get any votes from the working classes. They all say they would rather vote for Blaine. If Butler will run, we shall go to work and get up a mass meeting in Union square, over which Boss Manning shall have no control, and obtain a popular expression of the labor element of this city, where there will be no chance for caucusing or packing the convention. Then we shall make a thorough canvass of the State and get up a thorough organization in every district."
St. Louis, July 13.—The Evening Chronicle, one of the leading Democratic papers, states that the nomination of Cleveland is unsatisfactory and that it will not support him. It vilifies him in a column and a half of double-leaded vitrol.
AGAINST CLEVELAND.
An Influential Catholic Editor Bolts the Nomination in Advance.
The New York Freeman's Journal, edited by James A. McMaster, who always yields a free lance, is one of the most powerful and influential papers of weekly issue in the country. The current number discusses Governor Cleveland as a candidate for Presidential nomination. It says: "New York has no use for Governor Cleveland as a Presidential candidate. Mr. Cleveland was elected by Blaine's friends! These will vote for Blaine. Mr. Grover Cleveland Governor, has made a bad record. His ruling that a rich, moneyed corporation, by buying up one Legislature, constituted itself a high contracting power in a treaty with the State, in place of being as a corporation, subject to the State, shows that the possible Mayor of Buffalo is a failure as Governor, and would invite disaster as Presidential candidate. Whether John Kelly for him or against him, Mr. Governor Grover Cleveland is so generally disliked, and what is worse, despised, that he has no show of carrying this State against James G. Blaine." Who so blind as those who will not see the banners of opposition, not merely to Governor Cleveland's nomination, but to his election if nominated, raised and flaunted in the breeze on every hand, with myriads of Democratic voters behind them.
Genesis of the Republican Party.
[S. F. Bulletin.]
The States, Maine, Wisconsin and Michigan—each claims to have organized the Republican party. Perhaps Wisconsin is really entitled to the honor. On the last day of February, 1854, a meeting had been held at Ripon in that State, comprised of both Whigs and Democrats, that resolved that in the event of Congress passing the Kansas-Nebraska bill, they would fling their old affiliations to the wind, and join in a determined movement to oppose the further extension of slavery. The first convention on this platform—which may be called the first Republican platform—convened on the 6th of July of that year, and nominated Kinsley S. Bingham for Governor, who was elected by an overwhelming majority. Ohio followed Michigan in the same direction, and at a State Convention nominated a ticket that swept the field. The next year, in 1855, New Yorkers in convention abandoned their old name of "Whig" and adopted the Wisconsin name "Republican." In other States the party of "bolters" from both the Whig and Democratic ranks were designated as "Anti-Nebraskans." In 1856 they met in a National Convention and nominated John C. Fremont for the Presidency, and the Republican party for the second time under that name came into existence.

To Dyspeptics.
The most common signs of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are an oppression at the stomach, nausea, flatulency, water-brash, heart-burn, vomiting, loss of appetite, and constipation. Dyspeptic patients suffer untold miseries, bodily and mental. They should stimulate the digestion, and secure regular daily action of the bowels, by the use of moderate doses of Ayer's Pills.
After the bowels are regulated, one of these pills, taken each day after dinner, is usually all that is required to complete the cure.
AYER'S PILLS are sugar-coated and purely vegetable—a pleasant, entirely safe, and reliable medicine for the cure of all disorders of the stomach and bowels. They are the best of all purgatives for family use.

A Justice Court Scene.

A tolerably well dressed young man appeared before Justice Young yesterday on a charge of vagrancy. Standing with uncovered head in the august presence of the Court and trembling like an aspen the supposed culprit was an object of pity.
After eyeing the subject before him for a moment the Justice, in a manner calculated to frighten the most hardened criminal, informed the youth that a charge of vagrancy had been made against him. "What is your answer to the charge, guilty or not guilty?"
"I don't know, sir," replied the boy, more frightened than ever, "I didn't steal anything nor hurt anybody, as I know of. I didn't have a—"
"No explanations are necessary at this stage of the proceedings. Guilty or not guilty, that's the question."
"I don't see how I can be guilty, because I never committed a vagrancy."
"Where do you come from?"
"Hans Marker's ranch, on the Humboldt. He paid me off last week, but I spent so much money on the 4th, that's how I come to hide in the box-car."
"Where are you going?"
"To my mother, 873 Post street, San Francisco. She wrote me to come and I didn't have money enough so I thought I would hide in a box-car. That's how I come there."
"Have you any money?"
"Yes, sir, ten dollars and two bits, enough to pay my fare to Sacramento and I can walk from there, or work my way down on a river boat, if you will let me go."
"Was you ever arrested before?"
"No sir, this is the first time I was ever away from home, and I will never go around hunting for work again so long as I have a home to go to."
"Mr. Nash, was there anything missing from the car in which you found this young man?"
"No, I think not. Mr. Higgins reports everything all right in the car."
"Young man," said his honor, "I am going to discharge you, and don't you be guilty of any such conduct again. Keep out of box cars. If you must travel and can't ride a brake beam, walk. You can go."
